4. NOTABLE FEATURES, HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE AND DESCRIPTION William Jones House is a good example of a little house - colonade - kitchen, a type fairly common in Worcester County. The little house is two bays by two bays with porch on south side. Sash are nine over six. The studs extend past the joists forming "knee-room." It has a less steep pitch roof than the kitchen. There is a chimney on its east side. It is connected to the kitchen by a small, two-bay hyphen. The kitchen appears to be the oldest portion of the house with its nine over six sash, curved end-boards and enclosed leanto on south side. There are two small chimneys on the kitchen east gable, one within, the other without the frame of the building. 5. (continued)

Near the house is a small outbuilding with two doors adjacent each other and having holes cut in the cornice for a bird house. There are several other farm buildings behind the house but apparently the house has recently been vacated.
